

I work predominantly in clay at a large scale. My work is autobiographical, imaginative, and usually constructed impulsively. I use images that I believe exist in everyone's collective unconscious. By reconfiguring these images/objects, I hope to cause reassignment of the location in the viewers' mental cataloging system, and create a more tangible and potentially more joyous resolution of a memory.